

ONION yutting returned to the Forest in fine form with eye-watering consequences.

The Miners Arms in Whitecroft was the venue for the latest competition which took place last Friday (October 8) to raise funds for Lydney Hospital.

Challenger, Sean Wozencroft was taking on five year reigning champion, Dan Topping.

According to organiser, Pat Topping, the onions were on fire – literally – “They came from Scotts in Coleford and this year they were potent. It was ‘Oh my God’ around all the tables.”

Dan Topping came top (forgive the wording), just beating his closest competitor. Not surprisingly, neither were well the next day and (probably) stank of onions. Par for the course as they say.
